Hiking the Escalante: In the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument and the Glen Canyon National Recreation Area

By Rudi Lambrechtse

University of Utah Press, U.S. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Hiking the Escalante: In the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument and the Glen Canyon National Recreation Area, Rudi Lambrechtse, The Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument covers 1.7 million acres in southern Utah, offering the hiker an experience of deep solitude surrounded by a wealth of geological, biological, and archaeological treasures. Hiking the Escalante opens the door to exploration of this highly scenic area of meandering canyons with relatively few marked trails. It lists fifty hikes by degree of difficulty and includes directions to trailheads, instructions for how to follow particular routes, choices of side canyons along the way, suggestions for loop hikes, and occasional alternative destinations. Along with hike descriptions, the book provides information on the geology, natural history, and human history of the area. This new edition contains seven new hikes, new photographs, and updated information about hike terrain.

Reviews

The very best book i actually study. It is actually written in easy terms and never hard to understand. Your daily life period will probably be enhance when you total looking over this publication.

-- Edna Rolfson

A must buy book if you need to adding benefit. It was actually written quite perfectly and beneficial. You wont really feel monotony at anytime of your time (that's what catalogs are for regarding in the event you question me).

-- Kian Jacobi
The Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument (GSENM) is a United States national monument originally designated in 1996 as 1,880,461 acres (7,610 km²) of protected land in southern Utah. In 2017, the monument's size was reduced by a succeeding presidential proclamation. The land is among the most remote in the country; it was the last to be mapped in the contiguous United States. The canyons in the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument provide some of the most outstanding hiking opportunities to be found on earth. This is a huge area consisting of a maze of sandstone cliffs, canyons, and plateaus. The Canyons are part of a natural basin surrounded by higher areas of the Colorado Plateau. The National Park Service manages lands within the Glen Canyon National Recreation Area and Capitol Reef National Park boundaries and the Forest Service administers lands within the Dixie National Forest boundary. There are also some State and private lands in the area. Visitors use regulations may vary between these agencies.