Notes for study courses on the "Selections" from Gramsci's "Prison Notebooks" edited by Hoare and Nowell-Smith. 1. The intellectuals.
2. Education. In this section Gramsci gives a slightly different categorisation of intellectuals from the organic/ traditional dichotomy. "The intellectuals of the historically (and concretely) progressive class" exert a power of attraction and thus generate a "system of solidarity between all the intellectuals", welding them into a "caste". Written: Antonio Gramsci; Source: Selections from the Prison Notebooks; Publisher: International Publishers, New York, 1971; Translated & Edited: Quintin Hoare and Geoffrey Nowell Smith; Online Version: Antonio Gramsci Internet Archive (marxists.org) 2000. Note: This is an edited edition of Gramsci's notebooks and appears to be complete, finished, and organized. In fact, however, Gramsci did not organize his notebooks as they appear here. Hoare and Smith organized these notes around particular topics, whereas Gramsci originally wrote his notes in 29 separate notebooks, which he wrote Selections from the. Prison notebooks. Of. Antonio gramsci. The problem of making a selection from Gramsci's Quaderni or Prison Notebooks is complicated by two factors: the fragmentary character of the writings themselves, and the uncertain status of the Notebooks in Gramsci's intentions. From references in the Notebooks and in Gramsci's letters from prison it is possible to obtain some indication of how Gramsci intended his work to be understood. Soon after his arrest he wrote to his sister-in-law Tatiana (19 March 1927: LC. pp. 57-60) about a project of writing something "fur ewig" (for ever), something which would also serve
